Feast Days

July 11th

St Benedict (480-547)

After living the life of a hermit he founded the famous monastery of Monte Cassino. He is one of the patron saints of Europe.

July 14th

St Camillus de Lellis (1550-1514)

A former soldier and heavy gambler he eventually became a priest. With a few companions he founded the order of the Servants of the Sick who are also known as the Camillians.

July 15th

St Bonaventure (1221-1274)

A Franciscan, he is often described as a man of humility and charity. He was Master General of the Franciscan for many years at a time of crisis for the order.

July 16th

Our Lady of Mount Carmel

Who is My Neighbour ?

When the priest and the Levite passed by the broken man on the road, the listeners probably expected the next person to come along would be a Jewish man; however, the third person to come along, and the only one to show compassion to the injured traveler, was a Samaritan. Jews would never have considered Samaritans as their neighbours; they would never have thought that loving the neighbour included loving the Samaritans. Yet, it was the Samaritan who showed what loving the neighbour really meant. The Samaritan didn't ask where the injured traveler was from or what religion he was. He was simply an injured human being crying out for a compassionate response from another human being.

When Jesus finished the parable, he asked the lawyer 'Which of these proved himself a neighbour?' It is as if Jesus was saying that 'Who is my neighbour?' is the wrong question. What matters is to be a neighbour, and those who are good neighbours to others don't ask the question 'Who is my neighbour'
